from the executive director & board chair

Dear Friends,

Your generous support of Pro-Choice Resources helps to make life changing differences in the lives of the individuals we reach with our programs. We are proud of the unique and vital work that we do.

Pro-Choice Resources continues to be the only organization in the country with our combination of programs. No other agency houses an assistance fund, a comprehensive education and outreach program, social justice work and post-abortion support under one roof.

The work that we do together is truly special. Our work is about making reproductive choice a reality. It's about removing the barriers to health care that you or I may take for granted. It's about educating our youth to create a healthier society. And finally, it's about providing the support women and youth need every step along the continuum of reproductive health care.

Feedback about our programs consistently includes words like the ones you see on the cover of this report. Our supporters, constituents and clients see our work as responsive to the needs of the community, comprehensive in the services that we offer and innovative in the ways we break down barriers and meet needs.

In the last year, PCR has created original and inventive new programming like Emerge, our new post-abortion support and discussion group. In addition, we have formalized the progressive efforts of our Access and Equity Initiative, disseminating information about reproductive health disparities.

We could not do any of this without you. Thank you for partnering with us in our one-of-a-kind work.

The Birds and Bees Project

The Birds and Bees Project provides medically accurate reproductive health information to communities that would not otherwise have information and resources available, and works to fill the void often left by abstinence-only curriculum or no sex education curriculum at all. The Birds and Bees Project is currently the only program in the country using our innovative curriculum to talk about contraception, STIs and HIV, as well as information about all pregnancy options.

Staff members present and table at community fairs, festivals, professional conferences and other events to reach a wide variety of people. Thousands of supporters from these various events receive our activist alert e-mail, and are kept in the know about current and community events furthering reproductive health.

In addition to our presentations and outreach, the Birds and Bees Project created resources for educators, students and parents. For example, we created two new brochures; one for parents titled "How do I talk to my kids about sex?" and one for youth titled "How do I talk to my parents about sex?" Both brochures have been vital to the promotion of healthy discussions and relationships between youth and adults surrounding the topics of sexual health.

Access & Equity

By reducing barriers to comprehensive reproductive health, Pro-Choice Resources works to reach the entire community, particularly those most affected by restrictions and lack of access, such as low-income women and men, people of color and youth.

The Access and Equity Initiative works to create opportunities for education and debate on issues critical to reproductive health in communities of color. In 2005-2006, Pro-Choice Resources began hosting a quarterly speaker's series designed to expand the definition of reproductive health, bringing together groups and individuals that would not traditionally be allies in the "choice" movement. PCR hosted three speakers who discussed the following topics: reproductive justice, access to abortion for marginalized women, Latina immigrants' access to birth control and Emergency Contraception. PCR disseminates the E-Digest, a monthly e-mail that focuses on race and reproductive health disparities. PCR also strives to concentrate our outreach efforts in communities that historically have the most barriers to information, resources and health services.

The Hersey Abortion Assistance Fund (HAAF) aims to provide equal access to abortion for all women, regardless of race, age, economic circumstances, religious background, sexual identity, ability or pregnancy circumstances. HAAF is one of the oldest and largest assistance funds in the United States, providing no-interest loans to

Abortion Provider Expansion Project (APEP)

(a joint program with the NARAL Pro-Choice Minnesota Foundation)

The primary goals of APEP are to maintain and increase the number of abortion providers in Minnesota, and to be proactive in the community with regard to evolving reproductive health care issues. APEP provides direct services to medical students, nursing students, residents, physicians, and abortion clinic administrators throughout the state of Minnesota including Minneapolis, St. Paul, Rochester and Duluth.

This past year, APEP has seen direct results of the work we have done over the past four years. At least one new abortion provider who worked with APEP to receive abortion training during her residency will be providing abortion services in the Twin Cities and Duluth.

From July 1, 2005 through June 30, 2006

- Education staff gave 337 presentations to approximately 8,500 youth and adult students.
- Hits to our education website for teens, www.birdsandbees.org increased 17% to over 480,000. The top visited subject pages are "HPV," "Sexually Transmitted Infections," "MN State Regulations on Abortion" and "Surgical Abortion."
- Staff distributed approximately 5,000 condoms at outreach events in high-risk communities, and almost 10,000 condoms overall.
- Over 14,000 people at 41 community events received reproductive health resources and materials.

women seeking abortion, but who lack the financial ability to pay for the procedure. For girls under the age of 18, HAAF provides grants to help ease the financial burden on minors.

From July 1, 2005 through June 30, 2006

- HAAF received over 4,700 calls from women and girls seeking over $1 million in assistance.
- HAAF pledged a total of $148,018 in financial assistance to 933 women and girls nation-wide experiencing unplanned pregnancies.
- 5 out of 6 women who called were turned away because of lack of funds.
- The amount of money given to minor girls increased by 15% this fiscal year due to increased need

Emerge: After-Abortion Empowerment Program

Over the past year, PCR successfully established a new pro-choice after-abortion program in collaboration with Chrysalis Center for Women. This unique and innovative program fills a void within the community by providing a safe, respectful place in which women can share their feelings about abortion and address issues of isolation, guilt and stigma related to unplanned pregnancy choices. PCR is excited to continue serving women in need with this non-judgmental, no-charge discussion and support group that is facilitated by trained, caring professionals. The first group was held in August 2006 and will continue throughout the next fiscal year.

From July 1, 2005 through June 30, 2006

- 23 medical and nursing students participated in APEP's shadowing program at abortion clinics.
- 9 medical students participated in APEP's summer-long externships at local abortion clinics.
- 100% of the participants said that they would recommend the shadowing experience to their peers: a typical comment from an exit survey reads, "It was informative, interesting, and educational. I would recommend this experience to anyone who is interested in women's health."
